

UPHOLDS MAYOR WHO PREVENTED STRIKE MEETING

Pittsburgh Executive Wins Court Ruling in Fight With Steel Workers.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 4.—Mayor H. H. Babcock and other city officers were within their constitutional rights in refusing to permit a meeting of a lodge of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers in the steel strike zone, according to a decision handed down in Common Pleas Court by Judge John D. Shafer and Judge Thomas J. Ford.

"If the meeting in question had been a bona fide meeting of an organized lodge which had been heretofore meeting at that place, and if the attendance had been confined to members of the lodge and those who had business with it, it would take very strong circumstances to justify the prevention of such meeting. But in this case the number of people who attempted to attend the meeting was such as to indicate very plainly that whatever it might be named it would have been in fact a mass meeting."

Deputy sheriffs who have been ordering the residences of Judge Shafer and Judge Ford were withdrawn.

Three additional hot mills were placed in operation in the plant of and McKeesport Sheet and Tin Plate company to-day, and managers of steel mills in the district affected by the strike said they had commenced the seventh week of the struggle with to steel men and a better tonnage than last week.

DECK OF WORKERS' TRAIN NEAR GARY IS AVERTED

Conductor Sees Boys Piling Ties
on Tracks of Railroad.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—What the police believe was a deliberate attempt to wreck a Gary and Interurban special in carrying 100 steel workers to Gary, Ind., mills was frustrated last night after a conductor on a Michigan Central train reported he had seen two young men piling railroad ties on the tracks on the latter.

A wrecking crew was rushed to the spot and the ties were removed just as the Interurban train came into sight. It would have been difficult to stop the train carrying the workers, for all block signals had been passed. The police believe the young men were strike sympathizers.

MILLS IN YOUNGSTOWN GET MORE WORKERS BACK

Owners Report Steady Increase in Plant of Carnegie Steel Workers.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 4.—Mill operations continued to increase here. The McDonald mill of the Carnegie Steel Company was operated for the first time since the strike began. Another blast furnace was operated at the Ohio Works, and the tension bar mill at the Union Mills was started. With these additions, 75 per cent. of the company's plants in this district are now at work, company officials said.

Equity Association Decides to Book Players and Act as Producers.

Miss Margaret Vale (Mrs. George Howe in private life), a niece of President Wilson, made strenuous objection to introducing politics into the Actors' Equity Association when it was proposed to indorse Irwin Untermyer's candidacy for the Supreme Court.

The near-riot among the 1,200 members present at the Astor yesterday indicated Miss Vale's objections were well founded, but the association voted to support the Untermyer candidacy. It was argued for him that his father supported the actors in their recent strike.

It was the first general meeting of the Equity since the actors' strike was settled. Announcement was made that the membership has grown from 2,900 to 7,000, and tentative plans were outlined for a theatrical federation to be housed in one building, including a co-operative theatre to be run by the Equity, and for encouragement of the community theatre idea movement throughout the country.

It was estimated that the building to house the various features will cost between $600,000 and $750,000 and the members expressed confidence in their ability to raise the sum. It is proposed to have an assembly room, gymnasium, theatre, &c., including rooms of the stage, musician, dramatists and other societies. It should be under way within a year and will be in the Broadway district.

The theatre feature means that the actors' society will book players and produce plays itself, which will bring it into active competition with the regular producers and managers.

BUSINESS MAN NOW DEAN OF HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 4.—With the resignation of Prof. Edwin F. Gay as Dean of the Harvard School of Business Administration, the Harvard authorities have elected Wallace B. Donham, a banker and corporation lawyer, as head of this school.

This is probably the first time that a business school of university rank has gone out into the hurly burly of business to select its chief. Usually the dean of a business school is chosen from among professors of economics.

Donham has already entered upon the duties of his new position and the school greets him in his first year with the largest enrollment in its history. There are 265 students enrolled in its classes this year, 277 of them being first year men. Several new courses have been added to the curriculum of the business school, a notable one being the course in foreign trade. Prof. George B. Rorbach, an expert on commercial geography who has studied economic and commercial conditions in Latin-America under auspices of the Carnegie Endowment, is the professor of foreign trade.

Dean Gay, as is generally known, resigned in order to accept the editorship of the New York Evening Post. He was the first dean of the school, is the one chiefly instrumental in its rapid development, and his going is regretted exceedingly.
